Parent voices are needed!
As part of their new national center on the employment of individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities, Vanderbilt University is looking for insights and advise from Middle Tennessee parents of high school students or recent graduates with intellectual disability, autism, or multiple disabilities. Your input will guide them in developing a new intervention to help schools and families connect students to paid employment experiences before graduation.

What does it involve?
• Participate in a focus group (2 hours)
• A meal will be provided
• Receive a $50 VISA card for participating
